- Develop and update curriculum to align with industry standards and academic best practices. Conduct research and contribute to scholarly publications in STEM-related disciplines.
- Provide academic advising and mentorship to students pursuing technology-related careers.
- Engage in university service, including committee participation and student development initiatives.
- Collaborate with industry professionals to create experiential learning opportunities such as internships, capstone projects, and research collaborations. Integrate ethical, legal, and security considerations into course instruction.
- Participate in faculty development programs and stay updated with advancements in technology and pedagogy.
- Serving the University through committee participation and other assigned tasks.
- Other duties as assigned.

Qualifications for the successful candidate:

- Master's degree (or foreign equivalent) in Management Information Systems, Cybersecurity, Computer Science, Data Science, or a related field.
- Christian statement of faith, experience, and mission fit.
- Personal commitment to Jesus Christ.
- Understanding and alignment of the heritage, doctrine, and practices of the Church of the Nazarene.
- A strong commitment to excellence in undergraduate teaching in a liberal arts setting.
- Evidence of scholarly potential.
- Commitment to continued professional development.
- Excellent oral and written communication skills.
- Proven ability to work well with others, especially to work alongside students and colleagues.

In a continuing effort to enrich its academic environment and provide equal educational and employment opportunities, the university actively encourages applications from members of all ethnic groups underrepresented in higher education. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled; however, early application is strongly advised. Interested candidates should send an application letter, curriculum vita, unofficial college transcripts, evidence of teaching competence, names and contact information for three references, a one- to two- page statement of educational philosophy, and a one- to two-page statement of faith. Applicants are encouraged to submit application materials via email as Microsoft Word, .pdf file attachments, or as hard copies to:
